

ALLERTON IS KING.

The Wins the Great Ten Thousand Dollar Match Over Nelson.

OVER TWENTY THOUSAND PEOPLE

Witness the Splendid Race—Allerton Easily Takes Three of the Four Heats, and was the Favorite in the Pools from the Start—A Lively Race Sandwiched Between the Heats.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Oct. 8.—Allerton is king. Fully 20,000 people saw the son of Jay-Bird wrest all claim to the title from Nelson in the $10,000 race between the two stallions on the fast Grand Rapids track to-day.

The throng gave Nelson a shade the last of it in the way of applause when the two stallions appeared, but Allerton was very decidedly favorite in the pools.

Allerton acquitted in the scoring, but the horses got away in beautiful style on the fourth attempt. The quarter was made in 32 and the half in 1:43. The western stallion closed the race before the last quarter was reached in 1:24, but he went off his feet for an instant in the stretch and the heat was principally decided right there, Nelson winning by an open length in 2:13.

In the second heat the two got away on the first trial. As they swung into the home stretch, Nelson swerved toward the middle of the course and faltered for a moment. Allerton, with a mighty effort, flashed past Nelson like a black phantom, winning by half a length in 2:14.

In the third heat the stallions got away again together, Nelson taking the lead. The quarter was made in 32 and the half in 1:45. Around the back stretch Nelson led by half a dozen lengths, but on the third quarter Allerton came up, even, and by one of his phenomenal bursts of speed passed him out. Allerton trotted easily under the wire, winning by an open length in 2:15.

In the fourth heat the horses were neck and neck to the stretch, when Allerton went to the front and won easily. Summary:

Allerton 2 1 1 1
Nelson 1 2 2 2
Time—2:14 2:13 2:15 2:17.

A lively 2:17 race was sandwiched in between the heats of the stallion race, Harry Noble winning in three straight heats. Best time, 2:17.

A PILGRIM IN PRISON.

The Sad Experience of a Chicagoan Who Went to Treves to See the Holy Coat.

New York, Oct. 8.—Peter Heil, of Chicago, went to Treves to see the Holy Coat, and remained there four weeks without seeing it.

Few pilgrims, however, will have so much to tell about their experience in the old cathedral town as will Peter Heil.

On August 20, the day of the first exposure of the Holy Coat, Heil stood in the crowd before the cathedral, happy in the belief that he would be one of the earliest worshippers at the historic shrine. There was a good deal of pushing and pulling in the crowd, and Heil was driven into quite violent contact with the arm of a gay young woman of Treves. On one of her arms was a gold bracelet. The young woman screamed hysterically, and when a policeman appeared before her, in want of some better explanation of the disturbance, she said that Heil had tried to steal her bracelet. This was enough. Heil was removed to the gloom of a police station and searched. In his pocketbook were found several gold trinkets which he had bought for friends in Chicago.

"Where did you get these?" asked the commissioner.

"Bought them. I wished to take them to my friends back to Chicago."

"Bought? You stole them! Take him down stairs."

So Heil went to a prison cell, while the police hurried off to his hotel to examine his trunks. In them they found some remarkable instruments, which they at once decided must be burglar's tools. "This man Heil," they reported, "is undoubtedly an experienced and dangerous criminal."

When questioned as to the tools Heil explained that he was employed by a firm of organ makers, and that the suspicious articles were merely instruments for tuning organs. That was regarded as a very transparent falsehood and the authorities made short work of Heil's case. The Treves prison opened wide its gates, and instead of completing his pilgrimage, Peter Heil entered and began passing boxes for the benefit of the municipal treasury. He devoted himself to this rather elementary industry until the middle of September.

Meantime a higher court had inquired into the case and learned that Heil had bought the trinkets found in his pocketbook. The Foreign Office in Berlin had ascertained, moreover, from Chicago, that Heil was a respected and prosperous resident of that city. Experts from an organ factory said that the parts from the trunks were exactly what Heil had said they were. Heil was then released. As an indemnification for his false imprisonment the prison warden gave him the 23 cents which he had earned in his three weeks at pasting boxes.

As soon as he got out of prison Heil hastened to the railway station and boarded the first train. His desire to complete his pilgrimage to the Holy Coat was gone.

SCHWATKA'S JOURNEY.

A Thrilling Record of Explorations in the Far North.

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 8.—Lieut Schwatka, the noted explorer, who has been conducting a scientific expedition in the far North, reached Victoria on the return trip. He gives the following account of the journey:

"We struck Lake Ahklain June 16. The lake was found to be 15 miles long, drained by the river Newbury, 146 miles long. We shot Link Rapids, in which the waves were running eight feet high, and proceeded overland to Fort Selkirk. Here we hired Indian packers and started for the copper river country. About 225 miles brought us to the foot of the St. Elias Alps, which are from 12,000 to 15,000 feet high. Glacial ice extended 50 or 60 miles on each side. Here the Indians left us. The white men of the party then took 75 or 80 pounds each on their backs, abandoning all other property, including the scientific instruments.

"In a march of about 80 miles we managed to break through the St. Elias Alps on a glacier which brought us to the east fork of Copper river. This is a mountain torrent impeded by glaciers every few miles. The last day's march, from 4 o'clock in the morning to 3 at night, was only two and a half miles, but so fatiguing as to almost exhaust the party. The canvas covers of the bedding were used to build a boat, fourteen feet long with ribs of willows. In this we started down the Veer Guar, a fork of the Copper river, hoping that a few miles would take us out of the enormous rapids. They, however, were thirty-five miles long. The boat upset several times, and the men were nearly drowned. In one place all went over a fall and under a waterfall. Five miles of stream was an enormous canon with walls 600 to 800 feet high. Our speed was very great and we were not more than two hours in making these rapids. After going another 160 miles we struck Indians. By this time we were completely out of food, for a long time having only flour and tea.

"The descent of the Cooper river was much easier. When, about the middle of August, we arrived at its mouth, the men were almost shoeless and without clothes. We opened about 500 or 600 miles of totally unknown country. We secured thorough maps taken by Dr. Hays, of the Geological Survey at Washington. Back of the St. Elias Alps were over 50 peaks from 12,000 to 16,000 feet high. All of the upper forks of the White river were mapped out, and many signs of minerals, particularly copper, were met with. We saw fifty-five lakes, ranging in length from three to 100 miles. A large collection of botanical specimens was made, and the photographs of everything of interest were taken. The most successful feature of the whole trip was breaking through the St. Elias ranges, a feat never before accomplished by man. All of the party are well. The journey was hazardous in the extreme, and of imminent danger at times."

HOW TO GET THEM.

If you want new customers, ask for them.

There are hundreds of people living within a mile of your store that don't know there is such a place, and they'll continue to be ignorant on the subject unless you take steps to inform them. Some of us are too apt to think that "everybody knows us."

Now, that line of thought is a mighty bad one for business men. If they permit themselves to be deceived by it, they are pretty sure to "get left."

Seek publicity. Keep your name and your store's location constantly before the people.

Use the newspapers—there's nothing like it.
